WARRANTY & CARE GUIDE

Thank you for purchasing a Bracci Leather Sofa.

As the owner of this master crafted sofa there are a few things we suggest you need to do to maintain your investment. Please read this book thoroughly and feel free to consult your sales assistant for any further information.

We use genuine top grain cow hides on all our sofas. As a result you may see scratches, insect bites and scarring. These are not defects, but in fact confirm that this is a high quality top grain hide. There will be a distinct leather smell when you first receive your sofa, which will soon disappear over time.

It is not recommended that armrests and tops of backrests are used for seating. These structures are designed for their intended purpose only and may not sustain excessive weight. Abuse of your sofa may invalidate your warranty.

Avoid placing your sofa in direct sunlight or close to heat sources as this can fade and dry out the leather, causing it to crack or rapidly deteriorate.

Some medications and radium treatments, through perspiration, can cause leather to deteriorate and/or discolour. Some medications specify this; if unsure, consult your health care professional.

Pets can leave oils from their fur on the leather, which can cause the surface and colour to deteriorate. It is highly recommended you do not let your pets on the leather sofa.

WEAR & TEAR

Leather is a product with a natural elasticity and all sofas with use will show comfort creases. As a result of the sofa being sat on, the foam breaks in and the leather stretches. It is important to sit on all the seats and backrest the same way to avoid seeing a difference in comfort creases. The creasing also depends on the the leather type, thickness and the weight of a person. Like an expensive leather jacket or a pair of shoes, the leather stretches with use, wears in and shows creases. Therefore, creasing is considered within the quality standards of all leather sofas.

CLEANING

The sofa should be cleaned regularly, wipe down with a clean, slightly damp, dye fast cloth to remove dust and general soiling, paying particular attention to areas where human skin comes in contact with the leather.

We strongly recommend occasional deeper cleaning using professional cleaning kits (can be purchased from most furniture retailers and some supermarket chains).

Any fluid spills need to be cleaned and dried immediately and application of the cleaning kit is recommended. For any spills and marks that do not come out immediately, seek professional help.

Dirt and dust can become ingrained in the wrinkles and pores of the hide, so regular attention to high-use areas is recommended.

Some heavy duty leather cleaners can dry the leather out and may cause colour loss. Always read the instruction carefully and test in an inconspicuous location prior to cleaning. if unsure, always seek professional help.
